HAULING HEAVY GREEN CORN

Low-Wheeled Truck is Easy to Load and Can Be Used for General Work About the Farm.

A low-wheeled truck is best for hauling corn, because it is easier to load. They are also very useful for general hauling about the farm, and should not be counted as an extra expense when figuring corn-harvesting machinery.

We do not know of any harder job on the farm than tugging and lifting heavy green corn. It requires considerable skill in addition to strength in order to do the work with anything like ease and facility, and every practice that can be adopted to lessen the work should be put into execution.
The cutting should be low enough so that the corn may be dropped upon it instead of being lifted up to it.

MAKE PROFIT IN MUSHROOMS

Obtain Good Manure, Rich in Phosphate, for Foundation of Bed—Have Plenty Fresh Air.

(By C. LAUR.)

Any person who has a good cellar that he or she can use, can make a profitable business out of growing mushrooms. The temperature of the cellar should be kept always between sixty and seventy degrees, well ventilated, as the success of the enterprise depends upon having plenty of fresh air. The soil must be kept moist.
Secure good manure, rich in phosphate, for the foundation of the bed, which should be built on a dirt floor. For a bed fifteen feet long and three feet wide, two loads of manure will be sufficient. Build beds conical in shape, starting with a three-foot base, building up two and a half feet high with a crown of ten inches at the top. Use a frame of six inches in height to keep the beds in shape.
The bed ought not to cost more than ten dollars, the manure costing four dollars, labor $2.50, loan $2.50, six bricks of spawn one dollar. The yield ought to be at least 20 bushels, in three months. The average price for mushrooms is three dollars per bushel.
A clear profit of $50 can be made from every bed.

BIG VALUE OF WHEAT STRAW

Of Great Importance in Absorbing Liquid Manure on the Farm—Ways of English Farmers.

Stock farmers realize that the great value of straw is as an absorbent of the liquid manure on the farm. When thus absorbed by straw or corn stalks, so far as the fertilizing elements are concerned, this liquid manure is about equal to the solid. Farmers realize the great value of a straw stack when cattle are fed in the open and comfortably bedded, and the straw is rapidly decomposed. Still we doubt if even the best farmers realize the full value of straw.

English farmers are obliged to utilize all waste, and their chemists tell us that straw (presumably wheat straw) has a manurial value of about seven shillings per long ton, and a mechanical value when applied to the land of about seven shillings more, or a little over $3 per short ton, or 2,000 pounds. It may seem surprising that they figure the mechanical value as equal to the fertilizing value; but we have no doubt that on almost any kind of land this estimate is correct.

Try This For Neuralgia.

Thousands of people keep on suffering with Neuralgia because they do not know what to do for it. Neuralgia is a pain in the nerve. What you want to do is to soothe the nerve itself. Apply Sloan's Liniment to the surface over the painful part—do not rub it in. Sloan's Liniment penetrates very quickly to the sore, irritated nerve and allays the inflammation.
Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents of any druggist and have it in the house—against Colds, Sore and Swollen Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica and like ailments.
Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief.

Good Basement a Necessity.

No farm home should be without a large, roomy, dry and cool basement; of the kind in which you can store away a furnace, as well as serving as a comfortable workroom. Besides, any other kind is not sanitary, to say the least.

WINTER QUARTERS FOR BEES

Little Honey Gatherers Are Often Injured by Being Disturbed in Fall —Good Time to Buy.

The beginner who buys bees in the spring usually takes a daily interest in them. He will then have numberless chances to enjoy his bees, and the daily or weekly visits will not injure them, especially if their needs are properly attended; while in the fall he would only be injuring them by disturbing them often.

The reason for advising one not to buy bees in the fall is that there is much more risk in transporting them in that season than in the spring.

The combs are more likely to break in transit. Also the bees are probably all old enough to be acquainted with the location, and more of them will be lost when putting them on a new stand, especially if but little distance from their former location.

Wintering is probably the most difficult part of beekeeping and it is hardly advisable to buy bees just before they have to face the winter, for a beginner would scarcely be able to judge of the strength and wealth of the colony.

In the fall the breeding has stopped and it is more difficult to ascertain whether the bees have a good queen, and it takes quite a little experience to be able to quote positively that they have enough honey.

SORTING TABLE ON WHEELS

Single Horses Can Move Device to Any Desired Point as Work in the Orchard Proceeds.

In commercial orcharding it is generally most economical to have picking and packing work going on concurrently. This saves putting the apples on the ground and having to handle them again.

A portable sorting table upon which pickers can empty their bags is placed on low truck wheels and a single horse can move it to any desired point as the work proceeds. It should be made large enough to hold not less than two barrels of fruit.

The rear bolster is higher than that at the open end, so that the culls can be rolled out.

A long, heavy plank is placed on the ground on each side of this table on which the barrels are set for filling. The culls are allowed to roll into a pile from the lower end of the grading table.

should be pruned every year.
